

Supplementary Material

Ecology of House Crow (Corvus splendens) in Dir Lower, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Pakistan

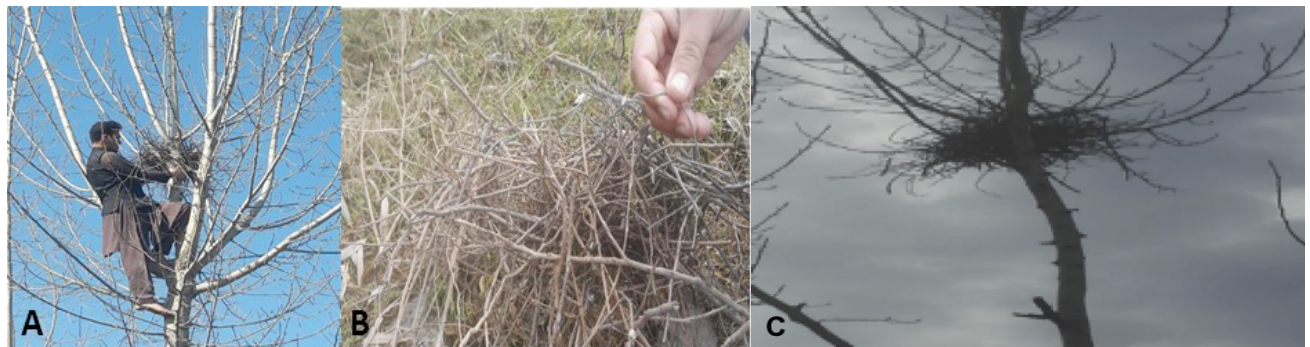

Sohail Anjum¹, Awais Ahmad¹, Farzana Bibi¹ and Hazrat Ali^{2*}

¹Department of Zoology, University of Malakand, Chakdara 18800, Dir Lower, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa

²Environmental Chemistry, Ecotoxicology and Applied Ecology Laboratory, Environmental Chemistry Section, Department of Chemistry, University of Malakand, Chakdara 18800, Dir Lower, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa

Supplementary Table I. Study sites along with their geographical coordinates and dominant vegetation (trees).

S. No.	Site name	Geographical coordinates	Dominant vegetation (trees)
1	Chakdara	34.6666° N, 72.0290° E	Populus nigra , Morus alba
2	Asbanr	34.8012° N, 72.1575° E	Pinus roxburgii , Morus nigra
3	Timergara	34.8278° N, 71.8423° E	Morus alba , Populus nigra
4	Talash	34.7415° N, 71.8720° E	Morus alba , Morus nigra , Populus nigra
5	Badwan	34.6576° N, 71.9698° E	Populus nigra , Morus alba , Morus nigra
6	Samarbagh	34.9117° N, 71.6436° E	Ficus carica , Populus nigra

Supplementary Fig. 1. (A) One of the authors (Awais Ahmad) inspecting the nest at a height of 9 meters; (B) A grounded nest being inspected; (C) A nest in the Populus nigra tree.

* Corresponding author: hazratali@uom.edu.pk;
hazrataliuom@gmail.com
 0030-9923/2022/0001-0447 $ 9.00/0
 Copyright 2022 Zoological Society of Pakistan